Nope. No warning.

George clearly kept Liz and the group informed that I was handling the releases because she always added me in to the email chain with enough warning but not while there was a lot of back and forth. George would call or email me during the back and forth to update me on timing.

I received the text of each of the releases and advisories in the body of an email from Liz to a group of about ten people including George and Melissa and a very helpful computer person out in Colorado named Tim.

If I needed anything or had a question I responded to the group and Liz answered immediately with whatever I needed. (one time was a headline, another was clarification on when to send or hold).

Hope this helps.

Julia,
As you saw, I have my first two going tomorrow and Sunday. Are we supposed to issue any type of warning before we issue these tangibles?

Thanks,

Not sure why I pulled up that old number. Thanks for updating.

We will wait on the newsroom Mon. Liz has someone put them up immediately onto our Gold King Mine press releases page.

George, please email and or txt Enesta. I definitely want to stick w getting a call.

Julia,
Text or email is better for my heads-up.

Robert's cell is Personal Phone/Ex. 6

Is someone populating the releases/statements into the newsroom over the weekend, or are we waiting until we are back Monday? We can't do that part remotely.
